Colonel Livingston answered him by telegram, asking him to make a bid for taking down the building and re-erecting it in Atlanta, without making the foundation or substituting anything outside in lieu of the staff, and also without regard to the tranportation of the building. The contractor was asked to submit this bid by wire immediately. TO BE INDICTED.

The Sugar Investigating Committee

After the Correspondents. Washington, May 28.-The report of the sugar investigating committee that w made to the senate tomorrow, will dis-close a procedure on the part of the committee entirely unlooked for, and some testimony that appears to have an important bearing upon the subject of the conferences between senators and members of the sugar trust. The committee will report, it is said, that they have directed the United States district attorney to proceed against Wit-nesses Shriver, Edwards and Walker before the grand jury and have them indicted for the commission of a crime, the committee act of 1857 the refusal to testify before a senate committee is an offense so punishable.

The committee will also submit the testimony of Senator Caffery, which is said to admit that a number of conferences were held between senators and representatives of the sugar trust. It is said that in his evidence Mr. Caffery admitted that he had been present at two conferences and in reply to questions said that one of them was held at the residence of Sen-ator Brice. It is understood that at this conference Mr. Caffery said that there were present besides himself, Brice, Gorman and Hill, and Havemeyer, president of the sugar trust, and other gentlemen interested in sugar, whose names the re-porter could not ascertain.

. Cuffery also told the committee that at this conference the sugar people made an argument in favor of a change from the specific rate of duty, which had at the time en agreed upon, to the ad valorem rate, which was subsequently adopted, but that he (Mr. Caffery) opposed this rate, be-lieving that the specific rate was better for the producers of sugar in this country.

Will Not Give the Names. The senate sugar investigating com-mittee this morning considered the cases of witnesses who have refused to disclose the source of the information upon which they based articles concerning the alleged acts of senators and the sugar trust in nnection with the construction of the sugar schedule of the tariff bill.

The committee had previously summoned Shriver, Edwards and Walker to appear his morning. Harris Walker, correspondent of The Daily America, of New York, was the first witness called. Walker refused to give the name of the person who had given im certain alleged information concerning the sugar trust. Shriver and Edwards were not called today. The committee is hearing an argument as to what to do with the recalcitrant witnesses before proceeding far-ther, and it it likely that the fact of their refusal to answer will be reported to enate with request for instructions as to the future course of the committee.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CAUCUS

To Discuss the Line of Campaign or the Sugar Schedule. Washington, May 23.—Senators Hale, Ald-ich, Lodge and a few other republicans met in committee rooms this afternoon for the purpose of discussing the situation and considering the advisability of calling caucus within the next few days for a party discussion of the line of campaign to be pursued in the debate and final action on the sugar schedule. The republicans b lieve they have it in their power to con-trol the senate in this matter. After a Droposition to maintain the present bounty is voted down, as it undoubtedly will be, programme, move to put sugar on the free list. HE WOULD NOT MARRY.

So the Crowd Took Him Out and Whipped Him. ...ontgomery, Ala., May 28.—(Special.)— Geneva, Ala., close to the Florida line, is agitated over a social sensation. Ed Cowart, a prominent young man, and Miss Lizzie Lunwood, a popular belle, were to have wedded. All arrangements were made; the preacher and the guests had all arrived; the wedding supper was spread, but the bridegroom was missing. A delegation was sent after him, but he declined to come, saying he had changed his mind. The bridal party was notified accordingly. The assembled gentlemen provided themselves with masks, again called upon the bridegroom, carried him into the woods, buckled him across a log and lashed him unmercifully, the blood being made to flow from his back. They had arranged to institute tonight. They had arranged to marry just after the commencement exer-cises ended, but an anonymous letter was yesterday received by the president of the institute revealing this plan. He sent this letter to Miss Alcott's father. She left home this morning, and just before noon was married at the residence of a Methodist preacher. This afternoon her father, whose daughter was then at his home, learned that the marriage was about to take place, and went to Wilkinson's boarding house. Meanwhile, his daughter had joined her husband, having been rapidly driven there. Upon the marriage certificate being shown, the father

The case has been on trial for about ten days and owing to the prominence of the parties has excited great in-terest. The killing was the result of a family feud. The jury recommended the de-fendants to mercy and this saves them from the gallows. At one time during the trial the friends of Whitehurst, the murdered man, thought an acquirtal would result and they attempted to storm the jail in order to lynch the defendants.

POOR PROSPECTS FOR A NEW TRIAL

He Slept on His Rights and Gets No Indulgence.

FIGHTING HARD TO KEEP HIS SEAT

Settle, One of His Opponents, Meets Him in Join tDebate-Ladies Give the Old Sinner the Cold Shoulder.

Washington, May 28.—Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, Colonel Breckinridge, by his attorneys, Major John Shelby and Hon, Benjamin Butterworth, presented to Judge Bradley, of the district circuit court, the bill of execeptions which Colonel Breck-inridge himself had prepared to the recent decision against him in the Pollard-Breckinridge breach of promise suit. Calderon Carlisle and Judge Jere Wilson represented Miss Pollard.

Colonel Breckinridge has deposited the bond of $100 required to carry an appeal of his case to the district court of appeals and Judge Bradley's approval of the bill would have been all that was necessary to enter the matter on the appellate court's books. Judge Bradley, when asked to sign the bill, refused to approve it, as under the rules of the court the other side should have been furnished a copy of it by last Thursday, while, as a matter of fact, they did not receive one until after 4 o'clock p. m. Friday, which Mr. Carlisle had refused

Major Sheiby stated that he had thought

Judge Jere Wilson, speaking of the action of the court, said that it apparently ended the case. The only way in which the defendant could reach a higher court was by a bill of exceptions, and he saw no means by which the defense could get such a bill. The counsel for Miss Pollard, Mr. Wilson said, had not taken advantage of the law in the case. In the first place, they had, after the motion for a new trial was denied, generously stipulated for an extension of the term of the court for thirty days, in order to allow time for the defense to prepare their bill of exceptions. There was some question as to whether such an exten-sion was proper, but the plaintiff waived objection, and consented to its being done. They had then waited until Friday morning before hearing anything of what was being done. Friday morning defendant's counsel asked that a stipulation allowing them more time be agreed upon, but this was refused, and the bulky bill of exceptions was handed to plaintiff's counsel late Friday afternoon after the expiration of the time prescribed by law within which it should have been furnished them.

A WARM CAMPAIGN.

Colonel Owen Declares Breckinridge Is No Gentleman. Lexington, Ky., May 28.-Colonel Breckin-

say:
"Breckinridge 'draw's large crowds because he is a dime museum moral freak, and morbid curiosity seekers, as well as the bread and butter breade, are anxious to hear and see him."

Nearly two hundred women were present and many bouquets were sent up to the Colonel Breckinridge was rather coolly received. He told of his services in congress and boldly said it was not a good idea to swap horses while crossing a stream. He spoke of the great fight for tariff reform and urged upon his hearers the necessity of keeping experienced men in congress in order to accomplish that end. He dwelt on his love and devotion for Owen county and her people and paid a high tribute to her unfaltering democracy. After speaking an hour, Colonel Breckinridge closed by Strikers Attempt to Stop Trains from Hauling Coal.

Minonk, Ill., May 23.—The strike situation is at fever heat. The miners are determined to stop all trains hauling coal through here, if possible. Three companies of troops arrived this morning. As the 8 o'clock train pulled in from the south with several cars of coal the strikes sent with several cars of coal the strikers sent runners to meet it. The train was guarded by deputies and the milita drove the strikers back. Two strikers who attempted to pull pins were arrested. The strikers were much excited and made riotous threats. They declared that the prisoners would be liberated before night. Another train pulled in at 9 o'clock, but the strikers were thoroughly cowed by the military and made no attempt to molest the train. Citizens fear trouble tonight under cover of darkness, well knowing the revengeful na-ture of the strikers.

WALSH ON THE TARIFF

Georgia's Junior Senator Makes a Sound Democratic Speech.

HE DENOUNCES THE M'KINLEY BILL

A Splendid Showing Made for This State and the South.

FREE COINAGE OF SILVER URGED The Senators Are Told That They Are There to Give the Country Relief and the Way Is Plainly Pointed Out.

Washington, May 28 .- (Special.) - Senator Walsh had for his maiden speech today an unusually large, attentive and appreciative audience. The gallery was filled and nearly every seat on the floor was occupied. A better tribute than all, the press gallery held an eager and interested throng of busy newspaper men. Those who heard him were well repaid, which is not the case with every senatorial effort. Indeed, it is rather the exception than the rule that one is repaid for listening to the set speeches in either house of congress. Most oratorical efforts of these solons neither instruct, interest nor amuse. Senator Walsh's speech instructed and interested his audience. He was in splendid physical condition. His voice was clear and resonant and under perfect command. His style was good, his enunciation perfect and his manner easy. He was self-possessed throughout. The matter of his speech was as admirable as his manner. It was patriotic as to Georgia, patriotic as to the south and patriotic as to the union. It was a magnificent exposition of the resources of Georgia and of the south. He endorsed the tariff bill, not as a perfect measure, but as the best measure attainable at this time. He defended the income tax on sound economical and logical grounds, and answered the specious argument of Senators Hill and Smith against it by just and convincing statements. He showed that the bill as a whole is in line with the Chicago platform and that while it may leave something to be desired, it is a substantial redemption of the pledges of that document. So clear were his facts and so convincing his argument that he was listened to with a degree of attention and a manifest interest seldom accorded a new senator. He had for his audience on the floor not only the democratic senators, but a majority of the republicans. The republicans, and especially those from the eastern states, gave him their undivided attention. Besides the senators, the Georgia representatives came over to listen to their new senator, and ex-Senator Wade Hampton left his office long enough to hear him. When Senator Walsh concluded he was congratulated by the democratic side. They all spoke in the highest terms of his speech, which made an impression remarkable in a first effort. Every one realized that in Senator Walsh a new champion had arisen, not of Georgia alone nor yet of the south alone, but for the whole reunited union and every southern man was ; lad and proud

Senator Walsh's Speech. In opening his speech Mr. Walsh took up ing for the people of Georgia, I am free to say that no such sentiments are cherished by them. They have no hostility for the people or the industries of New England. When the war ended they buried their re-sentments in the grave with their dead; and from that April day of 1865 when General Lee surrendered his stainless sword and General Grant magnanimously to receive it, the people of the south have turned their hearts to the union. have labored to build up their waste places. They have steadfastly walked in the paths of peace. They have endeavored to cultivate friendship with the people of the north, and they are today animated by love for their fellow-countrymen in all parts of the United States. There are no bitter feelings in their hearts. They cherish now, and will ever cherish, tender memories of that past made søcred by the heof that past made sacred by the hereof deeds of those who fought in defense of what they believed to be the right.

"No effort of the people of the south is based upon any feeling of ill-will or prejudice against New England. I appreciate the culture of her people; I admire her skill; I commend her thrift, and I would have the people of the south imitate her example in building up those varied in-dustries which have made New England the most prosperous section of the union." Mr. Walsh then spoke of Georgia's re-sources and her busy mills and quarries, her rich fields, forests and mines. Then he made the striking statement that during the past summer while there were millions of spindles idle in the east, every cotton mill in Georgia, and other southern states.

was running profitably, and making a class of goods in which they defy competition. Georgia's Increase in Wealth. The senator submitted a tabulated statement from the reports of Georgia's comptroller general, Captain W. A. Wright, showing an increase in fifteen years from 1879 to 1893. In 1879 the total taxable property in the state was valued at $234,859,548. In 1893 it was $452,644,753. In those years the total had nearly doubled.

A fact worthy of note in this report is that the negroes returned for taxation in Georgia, property aggregating in value, in 1879, $5,182,398; in 1889, $10,415,330; in 1893, $14,960,675.
This is indisputable evidence that the negro is given a fair showing, and that in Georgia the industrious and economical cit-izen can make a living and accumulate property, whether he be white or black. property, whether he be white or black.

Mr. Walsh dwelt briefly on southern development and then he took up the subject of tariff reform, declaring that the senators from the south are simply asking the senate to carry out the pledges made to the people by the democratic party to reform the tariff, and in connection with the tariff reform bill they champion an the tariff reform bill they champion an amendment to it which provides for a tax upon incomes. Because of the advocacy of this measure by senators from the south it has been charged that it is a southern raid on northern capital, and an effort to get even for southern losses during the war, by making the northern capitalists support the government. The South and Income Tax. "Mr. President, I have no respect for the spirit in which these charges are conceived, and shall not reply to them in the temper in which they are made. The south favors the income tax, not from sectional or partisan motives, but because it is equitable and right. It is believed to be right, not only in the south, but by the people in every section. Taxation without representation was a principle against which the revolutionary fathers fought in the estab-lishment of this republic, and representation in its councils without proportionate taxation for the support of the government is just as repugnant to the sentiment of the free voters of this country. But of this,

later on."

Mr. Walsh denied that the democrats propose to destroy the industries of the country and lower the wages of the American mechanic. The democratic party is not sectional. It is national.

"The course of the conators on the other side in debating every item of this bill de-ceives nobody. Their purpose is plain, and cannot be veiled behind protestations of sympathy for the various interests affected by the amendments which have been de-

Why the Republicans Delay.

"The republican senators know that the passage of the Wilson bill will inaugurate an era of prosperity and growth in this country and a revival of business through-out the land that will be disastrous to reout the land that will be disastrous to republican hopes. They wish to impress upon the country the relief that the democratio party is inefficient and after the elections (if they can succeed in electing a large number of republicans), they will claim the improved conditions resulting from the passage of the Wilson bill as the result of the return to office of so many republic of the return to office of so many republi cans, and the prospect of the return of that party to power. "The position of the two parties for the past ten years has been well known upon this great principle of tariff reform. The policy and purpose of the democratic party has been tariff reduction. "The republican party has always mas-queraded as the special champion of the rights and interests of American labor, but its course has always been in favor of the capitalists, and has tended to enrich the few and impoverish the many. Its legislation has made it possible for capital to oppress the people by trusts and other unlawful

Sehator Walsh reviewed the tariff struggle during the past few years, summarizing the education of the country in the past ten years under the leadership of President

Of the McKinley tariff the senator said:
"I do not charge, Mr. President, to the McKinley tariff all the ills from which the country suffers, but it has levied onerous country suffers, but it has levied onerous taxes on the many for the benefit of the few. Whatever the intention of its framers, the results have been most unjust to the farmers and the great body of consumers, from whom excessive taxes have been wrung for the benefit of the manufacturers. Its effect has been to make the rich richer and the poor poorer. The claim of our republican friends that the McKinley law has stimulated industries and increased the wages of labor has not been borne out by wages of labor has not been borne out by the record. Senators on the other side of the chamber have asserted time and again in the debate on the Wilson bill that during the existence of the present law the country has enjoyed phenomenal prosperity; that our industries have prospered as never be-fore, and that labor has received the highest wages. These claims deceive no one. They are without foundation. Never before within my recollection has the country witnessed such general distress. All sections and all interests have suffered. There never have been more failures, more suspensions and more enforced idleness among wage earners in consequence of general depression than during the existence of the McKinley tariff. The McKinley bill went into effect in Oc-tober, 1890. I give the record of failures for the years 1887, 1838 and 1889, before its enactment, and of the three years, 1891, 1892 and 1893, following its enactment, to show the absurdity of republican claims for the so-

"This alarming record of failures carries with it condemnation, and shows how empty are the republican claims of prosperity under the McKinley tariff, there being an increase of 18 per cent in the number of failures and an increase of the per cent in the number of the n ures and an increase of 44 per cent in the aggregate l'abilities. The prices of wheat, of cotton, and every product of the farm have been lower within the last three years and a half than within any period in fifty years. The demonetization of silver has contributed its share to the evils from which the country suffers, but the fact remains that during the McKinley law the products of the farm and the wages of labor have been lower than during any like period, so that the claims of the authors and defenders of republican protection are not sus-tained by the truth of history."

The Wilson Bill. The inconsistency of the republicans on the tariff was stated and this was followed by an argument in favor of the Wilson bill. Of this Mr. Walsh said in part: The Wilson bill is not all that its framers designed. It is not all that the democration designed. It is not all that the democratic party desires, but it is a substantial com-pliance with democratic professions. It is in the line of tariff reform. It reduces the duties imposed by the McKinley bill over 25 per cent, and this reduction is a practical measure of relief to the country, and a per-formance in entire harmony with the princiformance in entire harmony with the principles and policy of the great party which elected President Cleveland. "The Afferican people will accept the amended Wilson bill as the embodiment of the conservatism and wisdom of the demo-cratic party. It will bring relief to the people. It will revive the commerce of the ountry. It will relieve the masses of onerous taxes. It will stimulate new enter-prises and give hope and confidence to the public. It will give employment to the idle and will not lessen the wages of labor.

"While it recognizes the rights of capital it does not surrender the rights of the people to trusts and monopolies, which are fostered under the excessive duties imposed by the McKinley tariff. Viewed in every light the Wilson bill provides a fair tariff for freer trade among the nations." The Income Tax. Senator Walsh's remarks on the income tax were especially vigorous and effective. In the course of that part of his speech he

"The income tax seeks to carry into prac-tice a principle, which is recognized under all forms of government, that the burdens of taxation should be equally distributed and, in proportion to the ability of every crizen and every class and every interest, to sustain the government which protects their property, their lives and their liberties. This is a well-recognized system of taxation in Great Britain, Germany, Italy and in other countries of Europe. It should be en-forced under our democratic form of gov-ernment. It is in operation today in every state of the union, for it is a cardinal prin-ciple in the various states that taxation shall be uniform and ad valorem upon all property taxed. Burdens Unequally Borne "The burdens of taxation have not been equally borne under our federal system by those who are best able to bear them. For a hundred years, under our tariff system of taxation, the masses have contributed.

ted most of the support of the general gov-ernment. The proposed income tax will not ernment. The proposed income tax will no bear heavily upon the rich, and they should cheerfully favor rather than oppose it. The constantly increasing expenses of the general government make it absolutely necessary to introduce the income tax feature as a means of relieving the people from the excessive burdens of federal taxation. Even if the income tax should yield more than fifty millions yearly it should be ac-quiesced in as equitable by those who are est able to bear the burden. The expenses of the government are not far from $500,000,000 a year, and the income tax becomes an absolute necessity unless it is proposed to require the toiling millions bear additional burdens, which cannot and should not be compelled to sustain." The English income tax was explained and Whitaker's almanac was quoted as de claring that the great mass of the people now complain of the tast being too heavy. "Under the proposed income tax it is es-timated that only one out of every seven hundred and fifty of our population will be called upon to pay it. As a matter of equity there is no good reason why a graduated income tax should not be imposed and collected as it is in England. In Great Britain the exemption is $750. No reason occurs to me now why our exemption should be $4,000. Under 'our [system of federal taxation it is possible for a citizen to be worth millions of dollars and not to contribute any more to the support of the general government than the man who is worth but a few thousand dollars. There is no equity in our system of levying taxes for the support of the government. I have no sympathy with communism or socialism of any kind; but it is manifest to every fair man that the time has come when the ch should contribute their just share to support of the federal government."

Free Coinage of Silver. From the income tax Senator Walsh passed to the free coinage of silver. He quoted from the platform in regard to the coinage of gold and silver and then said:

"While it is desirable to secure the re-monetization of silver by international agreement, still, if the opportunity offered, would not hesitate to vote for free coinage with or without international agreement, believing that the immense resources and productive energies of this country would enable our government to sustain it on a parity with gold, and compel recogni-tion for it from the enlightened governments of Europe. If our census returns b correct, and I take it for granted they are, the decade from 1880 to 1890 shows the most marvelous growth in population and wealth in the history of the world. The increase in population has been from 50,000,099 to 62,-000,000, or 24 per cent, and the increase in Wealth from $43,600,000,000 to $65,000,000,000, or about 50 per cent. With this immense growth of population and wealth, the United States ought to be in a position tablish and maintain its own financial policy, as it does its republican form of gov-ernment independent of the nations of Eu-

The Silver Standard.

"I agree with the senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. Cameron), that 'if the United States would cut herself adrift from Europe, and take outright to silver, she would have all America and Asia at her back, and would command the markets of both conti-nents. The barrier of gold would be more fatal than any parrier of a custom house bond of silver would be stronger than bond of free trade."

Then the senator quoted that extract from The Financia! News of London recently published in The Constitution to the effect that if the United States were to adopt a silver basis tomorrow British trade wo be ruined before the year was out. This the repeal of the state bank tax. The contraction of the currency is one of the great evils from which our country suffers, and as long as it is in the hands of the few to manipulate it, and control the fiscal policy of the government in their own selfish interests, so long will there be depression in the agricultural sections of the country, so long will lower prices pre-vall for the products of the farm, and un-less some substantial relief be granted, either by the remonetization of silver or by the repeal of the bank tax. I do not see much chance for an early appreciation either in the price of cotton or of grain. An enlightened and just policy on the part of the federal government, and the enactof remedial legislation by this demo cratic congress will appreciate the price of agricultural products, start the wheels of industry, and revive our country today is stagnant, because of the uncertainty of congressional legislation on the tariff. The importers, the manufacturthe mechanics, the merchants and the farmers are looking to congress, and waiting anxiously for the passage of the pending tariff bill. All the great interests are suffering Business is in a partial state of paralysis. Public expectancy is fatigued with waiting. Its patience is well-nigh exhausted. It has just ground to feel deeply disappointed at the delay en forced by the opponents of the pending bill. What the country needs, and what the country has a right to expect from this body, is immediate action Every democrat in the senate is in duty bound to stand dges of his party, and to erate with the majority in enacting such laws as are deemed best to promote the welfare of the country.'

Democratic Duty. In concluding, the senator said: "Mr. President: The business of the

While he was discussing the income tax, Mr. Hill rose to put a question to him, but Mr. Walsh asked to be excused, "as this was his first speech in this august body," and he preferred not to be interrupted. At the conclusion of Mr. Walsh's speech an amendment to Mr. Hale's amendment was offered by Mr. Peffer to put undressed lumber on the free list, and to impose duty of 25 cents per thousand feet for each side planed or finished; 50 cents when side planed or finished; 50 cents when tongued and grooved, and 75 cents when planed on both sides and tongued and The debate went on until 5:45 o'clock, and at 5:50 o'clock, adjourned until tomorrow at 10 o'clock a. m. The lumber paragraph (178) as reported by the finance committee is: "Lumber of any sort planed or finished, for each side so planed or finished, 50 cents per thousand feet, board measure; and, if planed on one side and tongued and grooved, $1 per thousand feet, board measure; and, if planed on two sides and tongued and grooved, $1.50 per thousand feet, board measure; and, in estimating board measure under this schedule no deduction shall be made on board mea ure on account of planing, tonguing and grooving. (Sawed boards, plank, deals and other lumber free)."

Opinions on Senator Walsh's Speech Walsh's manner of delivery was impressive, his voice clear and resonant, his enunciation distinct, and throughout the chamber every word he uttered could be plainly heard, although he spoke from the back row of seats. When he had finished Mr. Walsh was warmly congratulated by his colleagues. Some of the expressions that fell from the lips of senators were as that fell from the lips of senators were as

Griffin, Ga., May 28 - (Special.) - Camp Northen was hardly so large in military to day as on previous days for a number of the soldiers had gone home to business. It is generally conceded that ten days is too long for a man who has business to attend to to remain away from home at this seas

LOWNDES FOR EVANS

The Wool Hat Boys Come in and Run Things.

THEY GIVE HIM A LARGE MAJORITY

Friends of the General Declare That Mr. Atkinson's List of Counties Is Practically Exhausted.

Valdosta, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—Today has been one of the greatest days Lowndes has ever seen. Early this morning the county was conceded to be battling ground. The Atkinson men had everything their own way, so far as uninstructed delegates were concerned, and even those who favored Evans were glad to join in sending dele-gates to the convention uninstructed. The wool hat boys turned the tide, however. At 10 o'clock they came forty-four strong from Lake Park. A few minutes later Mineola sent in twenty votes. About the same time the old soldiers from Naylor and Ousley rolled into line. Everything was Evans. At the courthouse the Atkin-son men made a desperate night for uninstructed delegates, but it was no go. All the Atkinson men from a half dozen coun-ties tried to control the tide, but there was no turn. In the convention the Evans men begged that a primary be held and that the strength of the candidates be tested, but the Atkinson men declared that the county was for Evans, so they wanted delegates chosen by acclamation. This was done by a vote of ten to one. Many claim that it was twenty to one. Cleveland's administration was endorsed.

TROUP'S OFFICIAL VOTE.

Congressman Moses Gets a Small Plurality Over the Local Candidates. LaGrange, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—The fficial consolidated vote for Troup county, es returned today, gives Evans 523 votes, Atkinson 580, Hardeman 1,099, J. M. Terreli 1.091, A. D. Candler 493, Wright 1,074, Nesbitt Waddell 150, Calvin 55; for congress, J. T. Johnson 423, J. H. Fannin 214, C. L.

The friends of Mr. Johnson have advised him to contest the election. They feel con-fident that the county is for him, and, from the way they talk, they seem determined to the election. Harrisonville district is said to have been managed by men who were not sworn. The district is a large one, and the result is being watched with naiderable interest.

His Club Conducts It. Savannah, Ga., May 28 .- (Special.)-Notwithstanding the fact that Waring Russell asked to have the investigation of the charges against him of offering the senatorship to Hon. R. D. Guerard for $5,000 open to the public, it was held today behind closed doors, and that, too, at his request. Messrs. T. D. Rockwell, Waring Russell, John Powers, Frank McDermott and Dr. B. F. Sheftall were called before the committee as witnesses, but none of them would make a statement as to what had been said or done. No authority of the Citizens' Club for the appointment of the committee has ever been given, but the investigation seems to be altogether in the of that club, and it is understood that a report will be made to that club at its meeting next Tuesday night. This too, will probably be behind closed doors. The reason assigned for closing the doors to outsiders was that Mr. Guerard had re-fused to be present, and there was no necessity on that account for making it

Considerable discussion has been going on this afternoon concerning a statement of Judge John J. Spears said that two members of the present democratic executive committee of Glynn county were contributors to a fund made up by third partyites in Glynn fund made up by third partyites in Glynn county to send him as a delegate to the third party convention in Atlanta. Judge Spears was seen by The Constitution correspondent, and made this statement:

"There is a small club of third partyites in Glynn county who selected me as a delegate to the thord party convention in Atlanta. I declined on the ground that I could not afford the expense of the trip. Mr. A. V. Putnam came to me later with a fund, which he stated had been contributed by third partyites who were in sympathy with our movements, and who had contributed to the fund for the purpose of sending me as delegate. Two of the donators whom Mr. A. V. Putnam named are now members of Glynn county's democratic committee. I did not know there was any secrecy about the names of the contributors, and heard nothing of the reports on the streets until tonight."

Chairman Sam C. Atkinson, of Glynn's the contributors, and heard nothing of the reports on the streets until tonight."
Chairman Sam C. Atkinson, of Glynn's committee, was seen, and denied positively knowing anything about the facts, having only heard the rumors. Several members of the committee were seen and denied emphatically any knowledge of the matter except street rumors. The democrats of Glynn are not alarmed. The pride of the county is set on carrying it for democracy, and there is no question of an overwhelming democratic majority. Out of 1,000 votes in Glynn, the third partyites will not poll over fifty.

They Are Making a Close Race for a Vacant Judgeship.

Americus, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—An exciting race is on between ex-Judge J. B. Pillsbury and Mr. J. H. Lumpkin for the judgeship of the county court, made vacant by Judge Matnews's death. Judge Pillsbury, filled the same office hefore and Fillsbury filled the same office before, and gave general satisfaction. He has some strong endorsements from business men and a portion of the Americus bar. At a meeting of the Americus Bar Association held here today about twenty members of that body, constituting a majority, endorsed Mr. Lumpkin, and wired Governor Northen, asking his appointment. Fourteen mem-bers of the bar declined to take part in the meeting, being committed, it is claimed, to Judge Pillsbury's candidacy. Their chances appear to be about equal.

GEORGIA POLITICAL NOTES.

General Gordon is to take the stump for General Evans, and will make at least three speeches for his personal and political friend.

This announcement is authoritative. General Gordon was in the city yesterday, and stated that he would make the speeches indicated. Georgia's senior senator was on his way to LaGrange, where he lectured on "The Last Days of the Confederacy" last night. Today he will go to Richmond to attend the unveiling of the monument to the private soldiers and sailors of the confederacy, and from Richmond will return to georgia to take an active part in the campaign. He will speak at Savannah, Macon and Griffin, and will probably be heard in other parts of the state. General Gordon will unquestionably be a powerful factor in the campaign, and will pe of great aid to the man who has stood by him in many contests.

General Gordon Wnites.

A letter which General Gordon wrote to a friend was given to the public yesterday. The general says he would like to write a letter to every democratic voter in Georgia. It is as follows:

My Dear Friend-You have long been, and I hope that you are still my friend. May I call upon you once more, not for myself, but in the interest of my long-known myself, but in the interest of my long-anown and cherished comrade, General Clement A. Evans? Let me say to you, in all seriousness, weighing well my words, that I feel sure of my ground in asking your earnest support of this truly great and good man. support of this truly great and good man. In doing this, I do not in any sense undervalue the services or ability of his distinguished competitor. He, too, is my personal and political Triend; and I shall be glad hereafter to see him advanced. But the considerations which call us to General Evans's support now, impress me as of the highest and most cogent character. After a life of notable purity, of singular devetion to the highest claims of citizenship and of to the highest claims of citizenship and of the most unselfish services to society and the church, to his people and country, he now, for the first time and at the solicitation of his fellow citizens, comes before the state as a candidate for office.

Never since his early manhood has he faltered in promptly and bravely meeting every obligation of life. Never in war did he shrink a hardship, fall to share in full recognite the triels and blitter experiences of faltered in promptly and bravely meeting every obligation of life. Never in war did he shrink a hardship, fail to share in full measure the trials and bitter experiences of his soldiers nor seek shelver from builets and danger when duty called.

I am confident that you will appreciate the fact that no selish alim could inspire this letter; because whatever personal or positical interests I might have in the future would surely suggest my silence in this contest between democrats. Without claiming for myself, now-ver, any peculiar exemption from the spirit of selishness common to us all, I do claim for General Clement A. Evans a very large share of exemption. I do claim for him a peculiar fitness in all his characteristics for the grave and responsible duties of governor of our great state. I do claim that if elected his sole concern will be for the good of the state and the best interests of all the people. I do claim that a will have no political debts to pay and no foes to punish. I do claim that his administration of the laws of justice will be fearless and free from all stain. I do claim that in these disjointed and troublous times the election of a man of his breadth and bravery and strength, of his great business capacity, of his elevation of character and wide reputation is of great moment to our future welfare and that it will insure an administration of which every Georgian will be proud, under which popular rights will be secure and by which confidence will be maintained and material development encouraged.

His reputation as a business man is so well established that it would greatly advance our material interests.

You will pardon me for saying, in conclusion, that the duty and interests of our people in this contest seem to me so plain that I deeply regret my inability to speak to them at once, face to face. I do not know how much influence, if any, I could exert; but I could at least tell them, as I cannot in personal letters, of the interest felt in this nomination outside of Georgia. I could at

LaGrange, Ga., May 22.—(Special.)—George Lewis, a negro, was shot and killed Saturday night about nine miles from here by Hen Heard and Dave Bird, both ne-groes. The trouble seems to have grown out of a difference between them as to which was the best dancer at a meeting of their society, which had just closed its exercises. Coroner T. H. Caudle was sent for, and upon an investigation by the jury the above parties were sent to jail upon the charge

Manufacturers and the Gold Standard. The manufacturers of cotton goods do not seem to be doing any better under the gold standard than the railways. The dry goods market, according to the reports of those who keep an eye on such matters, is not any livelier than the freight business.

The Fall River manufacturers have on hand 562,000 pieces of goods as against 6,000 in 1892. The Providence manufacturers have on hand 227,000 pieces as against none in 1892. In two centers, therefore, there are 789,000 pieces held in hand for which there is no demand, as against 6,000 pieces in 1892. This is a bad showing, but it fails to tell the whole story. There is no business of importance in the dry goods trade-we get our facts from The New York Financial Chronicle-and the outlook is so depressing that there are reports of impending stoppages of a number of mills that are running out of orders. They prefer to shut down rather than manufacture unsold goods.

The reason there is no business for the mills is because there is no demand for their goods. The reason there is no demand for their goods-the reason they are cutting down wages or preparing to shut up shop-is because the producers of the country whose prosperity sets all forms of business in motion have been paralyzed by low prices. The reason there is low prices is because the purchasing power of the dollar has increased and is still increasing in value. The reason the purchasing power of the dollar is increasing in value is because it is measured in gold alone, and there is not enough gold on which to base a redeemable currency sufficient for the needs of the people.

A nation is compelled to cut its business out to fit the available supply of primary money. When that supply is limited, business will be limited. When It is scarce, business will practically come to a standstill, and prices of commodities cease to be remunerative. The railway business is coming to a standstill hecause trade is at a standstill. The cotton producers of the country are unable to buy. The profitable cultivation of the land is the source of all prosperity. When the products of the soil cease to fetch fairly remunerative prices then every other interest must suffer in proportion.

At this moment, after gathering and marketing the staple crops of 1893, the farmers of the United States are less able to buy by $2,000,000,000 than if they had received the prices of 1866-73 for their great staple crops. two thousand million dollars is a pretty considerable sum when you come to reflect over it and examine it. Scattered around, agriculture scatters it, it would keep a good many mills running and large num bers of people employed for a considera ble time. It would put new life in every form of industry, and give trade a much-needed impulse. If the loss had fallen on the farmers alone they would have been wiped out of existence, finan cially speaking. But it has fallen on the whole country. Of all the people in the world the farmers alone are independent of trade and commerce. If every ship were sunk tomorrow-if every railway were destroyed-if commerce were brought to a sudden end-the farmers would still be able to earn their own living and make themselves fairly comfortable. They were at the birth of trade and commerce and they would survive their obliteration.

The money question, therefore, is less an issue for the farmers than for the business men, the manufacturers and the railway managers.

Concerning State Banks.

Congressman Springer's speech against the repeal of the state bank tax, when boiled down, amounts to nothing more than the assumption that a national currency is better than a local currency. Among other things he said:

The states cannot meet the requirements of the situation. Each state would provide a different system, different kinds of bills, different kinds of securities, different reserve funds, different methods of redemption and different plans for inspection and publication of bank conditions. There would be uncertainty, want of information as to solvency of banks, want of knowledge of solvency of banks, want of knowledge of the thousands of different kinds of bills in circulation, and general confusion in all branches of business. All this can be avoided. It is not only in the power of congress, but it is its duty to furnish the people a national currency—a currency—a people a national currency—a currency safe and as simple as our coins, easily derstood, readily convertible, and univer

Why does Mr. Springer ignore the fact
Why does Mr. Springer ignore the states prospered that for eighty years the states prospered with their independent systems of local currency, and enjoyed a general distribution of wealth that has not been known under the national banking sys tem? With the additional safeguards suggested by experience, it is conceded by financiers north and south that we can make the issues of state banks as safe as those of the national banks.

But Mr. Springer also ignores another matter of vital importance, and that is the fact that the states have a right to charter banks of issue, and a prohibitory tax imposed by congress is unconstitutional. The states have a right to authorize their local banks to issue a paper currency, and if the people choose to take it or reject it the general government has no right to interfere-no more than it would have to levy a prohibitory tax on the promissory notes of certain classes of its citizens, leaving other privileged classes free to make such notes and dispose of them to people willing to take them.

The issue of state bank notes will not do away with the necessity for a national currency, and the advocates of free silver and national bank notes have no ground for the belief that it will antagonize their interests when the people of the different states are authorized to use their credit. Silver will be needed as a portion of the redemption money for the issues of state banks, and the national banks will not be injured, unless it can be called an injury to prevent them from cornering and monopolizing the currency of the country.

A Misinformed Contemporary. We find the following in The Boston

Herald: Senator Morgan had a very close call in the convention of the Alabama democrats, and, as things stand, he has not much to boast of in the way of an endorsement. solution that was introduced endorsed his ability, but not his democracy, and an-oher recognized each. They were both withdrawn, and it was finally declared that, while the democrats of Alabama differed from Senator Morgan on matters of policy his democracy was fair to middling. T administration of President Cleveland, the other hand, was handsomely endors and the action of the convention gives as surance of a united support by the party, distinctly pledged to the support of the administration and the declared principles of the national democracy.

We are very sure The Herald would not attempt to mislead its readers in a matter of this kind. It has simply been deceived by press dispatches colored to suit the views of the adherents of the gold trust in this section. Senator Morgan was enthusiastically endorsed in every primary convention held in the state.

There was really no reason why the state convention should have endorsed Senator Morgan. It was not there for that purpose. But an attempt to sidetrack a resolution of endorsement raised such a storm in the convention that it was carried through without opposition. Moreover, the significant clauses of the endorsement were word for word a repetition of those in the endorsement of President Cleveland.

We are sure if The Herald had been aware of the facts it would not undertake to distort the facts in the There is another fact The Herald case. would do well to take into consideration. The convention endorsed the democratic administration, and declared its confidence in Mr. Cleveland, and reaffirmed the democratic platform, just as it endorsed Senator Morgan; but it declared that some of the democrats differed with both the president and the senator in matters of policy.

If The Herald will get hold of a report of the convention's proceedings, it will discover that the democrats, for the sake of harmony, divided the honors fairly between the factions, and composed the differences between them so that all democrats could get together Ind support the nominees of the convention.

Senator Walsh on Tariff Reform. Senator Patrick Walsh made yesterday one of the best speeches of the session in favor of tariff reform.

The senator repudiated the idea that the south is in any sense hostile to the industries of New England, and claimed that the southern states are destined to be the greatest manufacturing section of the union. In order to show the trend of affairs in this section he quoted from Comptroller General Wright's report giving the increase in taxable values in Georgia for the past fifteen years. In 1879 the total value of the property on the tax digests was $234,959,548; in 1893 it was $452,644,753. This does not include some $20,000,000 worth of railroad property. Going into details it is worthy of note that during the period mentioned the value of our cotton mills increased from $1,640,000 to $12,062,767, iron works, foundries, etc., from $295,640 to $1,574,918, capital in mining from $97,580 to $270,790. The increase in these industries is much more marked than the increase of the agricultural interest. Mr. Walsh declared that the democrats of the south favor the income tax, not as a sectional measure, but because it is just and equitable. The revenue tariff plank in the Chicago platform is solidly endorsed in the south, but our people recognize the fact that the democratic party is national and not sectional, and it is absurd to suppose that they have any desire to discriminate against any American industry or lower the wages of the mechanic or laborer. We have seen under the McKinley bill millions of dollars worth of our products shut out from foreign markets because we would not allow other countries to compete with us for the custom of our home markets. The policy of the democratic party has not been free trade but tariff reduction. It has declared not only for lower taxation but for non-interference with the capital and labor engaged in the manufacturing interests of the country. The overwhelming election of Mr. Cleveland on a reve nue tariff platform leaves no doubt as to the wishes of the people. Under the McKinley tariff we have had more failures, suspensions, enforced dleness and general distress than has ever been known within the past two generations. In three years it has caused an increase of 18 per cent in the number of failures and 44 per cent in the liabilities. The prices of farm products have declined lower than at any time within fifty years. The demonetization of silver was largely responsible for this

British masses never complain of the tax, because it falls on those who are able to pay it, whereas, under our system we collected last year over 60 per cent of our tariff duties out of the necessaries of life while the luxuries paid only 37 per cent. Under the present law the poor man pays as much and sometimes more than the millionaire for the support of the government because the tax is laid on consumption. This is inequita-

The senator urges the democrats in congress to redeem the free silver and state bank planks of their platform. He contends that it is safe for this country to adopt free coinage, with or without international agreement, and that our population, wealth and resources will enable us to sustain it on a parity with gold, and compel recognition for it from the enlightened governments of Europe. His view of the state bank tax is a sound one. He argues that it is an unconstitutional war measure, prohibitory tax, and that it should be repealed, because it has served its purpose and because the states have just as much right to control their own local banks as they have to exercise any other right under the constitution. The tax should be unconditionally repealed.

But the speech should be read in full. It is a clear presentation of the facts of the situation and an unanswerable argument for the redemption of the democratic pledges of the remonetization of silver, state banks and a revenue tariff. Until these pledges are redeemed the senator frankly says that he sees little prospect of the improvement of trade. the revival of industry and better prices for farm products.

Some Timely Exposition Points.

In another column will be found an article contributed by Colonel D. A. Tompkins to The Charlotte Observer in which some convincing arguments in favor of government aid for our exposition are clearly presented.

Colonel Tompkins, who is one of the leading men of the industrial south, makes it plain that southern congress men can make no bigger mistaké than to vote against a government appropriation for the exposition on the ground of economy. As he puts it, we spend about $160,000,000 a year for pensions, and practically all of it is distributed in the north. Then, of the naval appropriation about $50,000,000 goes to the north. The benefits of most of the protective duties build up the fortunes of northern manufacturers. Whenever there is a big government appropriation the north gets nearly all of it, but when anything is said about a little appropriation for a fast mail service or a trade exposition in the south some of the southern congressmen begin to talk about economy. This is economy on the wrong line and does the south no good.

It should be recollected that the Cotton States and International exposition will be no mere holiday show. Its main object is to extend our trade in the Spanish-American countries, and it will be a positive benefit to every market and every section. It is a national enterprise and is international in its scope. The republicans of the house committee on appropriations recognize this fact. They take a strictly business view of the enterprise and believe that the government should aid it. Under the circumstances, we cannot see how any democratic congressman can find it in his heart to work against the exposition on the mistaken ground of economy. We must get ready for business under a lower tariff, and the first step should be to cultivate closer trade relations with the countries south of us. The exposition is intended to blaze the way, and it should receive the support of the government and of every American

EDITORIAL COMMENT. "The medicinal value of apples is not half appreciated," said Dr. J. L. Selkirk, of Rochester, N. Y., to a St. Louis reporter. "To men of sedentary habits, whose lives are sluggish, the acids of the apple serve to eliminate from the body noxious matters, which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about jaundice, skin eruptions and kindred evils. The malice acid of ripe apples, raw or cooked, will neutralize any excess of chalky matter engen eating too much meat. It is also true that such ripe fruit as the apple, pear and plum, taken without sugar, acidity of the stomach rather than provoke it, as is popularly, but erroneously, suppos-ed. A shrewd attempt to steal a march on nature is now being made by agriculturists which, if successful, may bring about a revolution in farming practice. The point which there is just now much striving to elucidate is whether the excrescences which naturally form on the roots of clover, peas and other luguminous plants, and which enable such plants to decompose the atmosphere and use its nitrogen, may not be also made to grow on corn, cats and other plants of the grass family. If this can be accomplished it will be possible to make corn, oats and wheat renovating crops, as clover and peas now are. The process of experimenting is to inoculate corn and oat roots with the bacteria taken from the warts on the roots of clover. This is a ticklish process, as the bacteria from clover est conservative habits and die outright if they are transferred suddenly to an entirely different kind of plant. So they are cultivated at first in a culture media, only a portion of which consists of watery solutions of clover. So far the experime have entirely falled on oats, but they have been partly successful on the roots of In-dian corn. The corn plants whose roots dian corn. The corn plants whose roots were inoculated were slightly more thrifty shrinkage, but it will be seen that the claims of the protectionists are not sustained by the facts. The Wilson bill may not be a complete remedy but it is a reform and on the right line.

In regard to the income tax Senator Walsh made a strong point when he called attention to the fact that the important discoveries of modern times will have been reached, it will mean a thorough revolution in farming. Farmers will no onger need nitrogeneous manures, or ever clover as a nitrogen-catching crop, but will be obliged to furnish only the mineral elements of crops, leaving science and na-ture to supply all else required.

What Charlotte's Most Progressive Citizen Says on the Subject.

D. A. Tompkins in The Charlotte Observer. Wherever I have been in Mexico the fact has impressed itself upon me that ther is a considerable trade there which the Americans of the United States ought to control. I have written of this from Mexico and made the suggestion that the same conditions probably existed in Central and outh American countries. I suggested wither that with the prospect of trade, and a growing trade with these speaking countries before us, it might be well to have the Spanish language introduced in some of our schools to take the place of the French or Germa of my interest in this subject accepted an invitation sent me by Mr Clark Howell, of The Atlanta Constitution to join a delegation that had been organiz to go to Washington to ask congress to make a government exhibit at the proposed Cotton States and International ext which it is desired to hold in Atlanta in My invitation explained that the purpose of the proposed exposition was to encourage trade relations with Mexico, Central and South American countries.

Congressman Livingston's time was practically devoted to us, not over-assiduously, but apparently in good faith, simply to help us get what we went to Washington for. He arranged a hearing for us before the appropriations committee. Besides our regular delegation there were two negro bishops, one from Georgia and one from Texas, and Professor Booker Washington, of the Tuskegee, Ala., school, who were there asking for an exhibition of what the colored race had done in thirty years of freedom The northern republicans of the committee seemed more interested in the scheme and in the subject than the democratic members did. The interest of the northmembers did. The interest of the north-ern republicans was not on account of the colored brother and the progress he had made in thirty years, either, but it was purely upon the subject of extending American trade with South America. Sentiment about the colored man is all very well when business is good and money plenty, but in times like these what we all want is some remedy for the stagnation of the markets It transpired that the scheme was well received on its merits, as a trade-extending exposition, by both democrats and republi

ns. If there was any difference publicans were rather more favorable Many northern republicans said: "We are in favor of any meritorious plan to extend our trade relations. If you don't get congress to make a government exhibit it will be because your own southern member will defeat it."

When I repeated this to a southern mem-ber, he said: "Yes, the republicans are ready to vote for spending money every time and just at this time they would like to see the democrats make more appropri-ations than the secretary of the treasury could provide for."

Several southern congressman doubted if they could vote for the necessary money to make an exhibit at Atlanta because they had been elected on a platform of

The appropriation asked for is $500,000. The appropriation for pensions is something like $160,000,000, all of which practically goes north. The benefits of the bulk of the protective duties accrue to northern manu facturers. It looks very much as if the strict economists from the south might ad dress themselves to the duty of getting the pension list reduced by about $100,000, 000 or cause a fair proportion of the naval appropriation to be spent in the south. That sort of economy by which the north-ern states get the bulk of the money the government raises, even up into the hun-dreds of millions, while the small sum necessary for a fast mail or a trade exposition is treated as a proper occasio for the exhibition of economical virtue, does not seem to me a very desirable sort of economy of our end of the union. take it all in all there is little occasion for complaint at our reception at Washington The question of having an exposition de-pends upon Atlanta and the southern people. If a good showing is made there probably be no trouble about the government. ment exhibit and a good one, too. I hope the scheme will be successfully carried out To be successful it must be the means finding some markets to the south of for our manufactured products.

For the purpose of extending our trade relations with South American countries the following things seem to be neces-1. To know the taste of the people as to designs of goods.

2. To know what sort of packages are 3. The establishment of regular transpor-

4. The establishment of banking and exchange facilities.

The first move towards all these is to get a lot of the people up here, get acquainted with them and let them see what we can do. By the proposed Cotton States and International exposition at Atlanta a big step could be made towards the accomplishment of this first move in the direction of extended trade relations.

The next step would be for some of our young men, who are looking for business openings, to go to South America and go into business as the English go to India and as many of them do to South America also for that matter. I should think that also for that matter. I should think that a young man who was a good salesman and who understood agricultural machinery could do well in South America. In Mexico I have noticed that there are many Germans and Englishmen there in business. We need extended trade relations and we ought to do every reasonable thing to acquire them. The benefits would accrue to the whole union and would nelp to give us markets for our increasing manufactors.

The efforts of Colonel Avery to interest the commercial organizations of Baltimore in the Cotton States and International exposition, to be held in Atlanta next year should meet with success. Baltimore will be a gainer from such an exhibition if ; good display is made, as the attendance will be large, and people from the north, east and west will be attracted to this important southern dity. Our merchants should not fail to give to the exhibition a hearty and liberal support. Then when Baltimore gets up its great exhibition Atlanta and all the other flourishing cities in the south should come forward and contribute. Reciprocity of this sort will prove of advantage to all.

"I am willing to do anything at any price," said a sturdy, well-built bright and intelligent young man who came to The Constitution yesterday. He is a young man earnest and capable, who not only needs work, but must have it. He is well known in Atlanta, where he has worked for couple of years. He gave up a position accept one which promised better in the west, but the hard times in that section caused a cutting down of the force where he was working and he reached Atlanta a month or so ago with $7 in his pocket. Since then he has been trying to get work. "I am willing, as I say, to do anything at any price. I must live somehow. Since Saturday I have made 103 applications for positions, this handsome editorial tribute to the memory of the late General Phil Cook, under the heading, "A Brave Soldier Dead."

General Philip Cook, the secretary of state of Georgia, who died on Monday last was a brave soldier of the confederacy and one of the hardest fighters in the war. Shot through the body at Malvern Hill, he was again in the field at Chancellorsville, and so desperately wounded there that amputation was thought to be necessary. He was saved from this extremity, however, and went back to the front on crutches. He led the attack on Fort Stedman, that last ray of light in the darkening gloom of the confederate cause, and was so badly wounded that he had to be left behind when Petersburg was evacuated. He had entered the war as a niviate and was last ray of light in the darkening gloom of the confederate cause, and was so badly wounded that he had to be left behind when Petersburg was evacuated. He had entered the war as a private and was a general at its close, every promotion having been won by bravery. It is impossible not to admire such a gallant record, even if the gallantry was displayed on the side of rebellion, and it is safe to say that a man like General Cook, who had done his fighting at the front, did not cherish the revengeful feeling toward the north which is being exhibited in such a despleable and detestable manner in congress by men whose services to the confederacy were far less conspicuous."

"If you people succeed in getting that government building down here to your exposition," said Captain John Hardaway, of Providence, R. I., who is at the Aragon, "you will, I fell certain, be able to count upon the success of your exposition as as-sured. In an exposition of the size which sured. In an exposition of the size which yours will be, and, indeed, in any exposition for that matter, that government ex hibit would be a great big feature. The exhibit is one of the finest and one of the most complete that was ever gotten together, but was naturally oversha to a certain extent at the world's fa people of the south who saw the fair mad anything like a study of this exhibit and will be practically new to them and to everybody else who comes to your exposi-tion. That exhibit, with what you will have from the southern states, and particular your building showing the progress of the negro from the days of slavery, will be enough to draw people from all parts of the country, even if you have nothing else.

A purely southern exposition will be a great attraction to the people of the north, and, I am sure, held at the time of the year when you will hold this, it will bring ten of thousands of people from all parts of the country. To the average man of the north a trip to the south is as much of an event as a trip to Europe, and everybody who can get away will run down to Atlanta some time during the holding of the exposition. You people deserve a gov-ernment exhibit and I certainly hope you will get it."

Few Days, Sure.

THE COMMISSIONER TO TAKE HOLD

First-Class Rates from New York to Atlanta to Drop to Forty Cents-Other Railroad News and Gossip.

As The Constitution predicted from the very first of the rate war that is now on from the east to southern points, there is going to be some fun before it is ended. It is now something more than probable in fact it may be relied on—that the com-missioner of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association has finally thought best to made a radical reduction of rates from New York and other western cities through the teritory of the association in

Of course it goes without saying that Atlanta, as the largest jobbing center in this region of the country will be amply protected in the manipulation.

It is not yet known what the exact fig-ures will be as fixed by the commissioner. but it need occasion no surprise if firstclass freight is transported from New York, Boston and other eastern market points to Atlanta for 40 cents per hundred pounds within the next few days.

Commissioner Stahlman is not in the city, but it is safe to say that he has ordered ction only after the most careful deliberation.

It is equally as safe to say with respect to the causes of this movement on the part of the commissioner that he has decided to make the rate as a last desperate remedy for evils which, it is believed, have existed for months past.

In the meantime Atlanta merchants will be quick to seize the opportunities thrown about them by these sweeping reductions and make hay while the sun shines.

If the rate is made 40 cents on firstclass freights it is interesting to know what the other classes will be. It is whis-pered that on the 40 cent first class basis the second class figure will be 17 cents. This will be the lowest rate on freights from the east the merchants of Atlanta have known for many a day. The war will be fairly blazing withing the next few days there is no sort of doubt, and that trade will receive an impetus while it lasts is easily predicted.

What Will the Clyde Do? Before it was known yesterday that the commissioner would take the rate war in hand the rumor was current that some of the roads would cut the rate on firstclass freight to 25 cents per hundred in order to bring the Clyde line to its senses in the matter, as it was claimed.

To this Mr. Sam W. Wilkes, the wellknown agent for the Clyde line in this city, said to a Constitution reporter when seen that the Clyde would meet the cuts of the other lines no matter what they resorted to as a means of breaking up the recent reduction granted by his line.

"I tunk I know what I am talking about," said Mr. Wilkes, "and I declare if the other lines run the rate down to a quarter of a dollar from New York the Clyde line will gladly meet it and hold it there until they say enough."

Thus it is a reasonable presumption that the roads will have a time of it, and that they would have played a lively game, even if the commissioner had not thought best to play a hand himself. known agent for the Clyde line in this city,

All About the Cut.

All About the Cut.

The rate on first-class freight from New York to Atlanta used to be $1.14. The Clyde Line cut it to $4 cents.

The other roads, the Central and Ocean Steamship companies, the Seaboard Air-Line, the Richmond and Danville and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia all met the rate.

Now the commissioner makes a sweeping cut on first-class freight to $40 cents per hundred, which brings it down to considerably less than half what it was formerly. This is something wonderful in the way of cheap rates from the east.

What's going to happen next? is the question with the merchants of Atlanta and the roads, too.

R. and D. Reorganization Assured. Reand D. Reorganization Assured.

New York, May 28.—The successful reorganization of the Richmond and Terminal system is practically assured and all the committee is now waiting for is the foreclosure of the property, which will take place in June. During the past two or three weeks the committee has reduced the floating debt of the company very materially by paying off three large loans, as well as a number of smaller ones. It is the intention of the committee to continue this course. of the committee to continue this course until all the floating debt is extinguished.

The Norfolk and Western Project.

The Norfolk and Western Project.

Much has already been said in the railroad columns of The Constitution bearing upon the rumored projects of the Norfolk and Western in the effort to get a direct connecting link into Georgia from Tennessee for the southern coast.

Latest reports from East Tennessee say the road is projected from Cumberland Gap, Tenn., to Cartersville, Ga., by the Fairmount Valley Rialroad Company, making a new north and south line through Tennessee. The route of the line will take in Coal Creek, Kingston and Cleveland in Tennessee and run via Spring Hill, Ga., to Cartersville. This road will place the new road between and parallel to the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia and the Cheinnati Southern. At Cartersville, Ga., the Western and Atlantic railroad would give an entrance to Atlanta. The interesting feature of this project is a report that the Norfolk and Western is identified with it, says The Manufacturers' Record. The Louisville and Nashville also figures in the discussion over the new road. It has been but a few weeks since the control of the Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville was transferred to the East Tennessee through Drexel, Morgan & Co. This transfer it was generally considered would ultimately cause the Louisville and Nashville to build from Jellico to Knoxville and either secure the Marietta and North Georgia or else to build a separate line from Knoxville to the southward. Then there is one more point brought out. The Norfolk and Western reached Cumberland Gap from Norton, Va., over the Louisville and Nashville and Nashville and hashville and hashville and the Norfolk and Western reached Cumberland Gap from Cumberland Gap to Cartersville, Ga. By its construction in the interest of the Louisville and Osesess an outlet south through East Tennessee into Georgia that they are accredited as wanting.

Columbia, S. C., May 28.—(Special.)—It is umored here tonight that the Atlantic Coast Line railroad will build a road from Charleston, S. C., to Augusta, Ga., and that Chief Engineer Gardner went to Charleston today to commence tomorrow a survey of the proposed route. It is said that the Louis-ville and Nashville road is an ally of the Coast Line in the venture and that the fallure of the Louisville and Nashville road to obtain control of the South Carolina road, now the South Carolina and Georgia, is at the bottom of the new undertaking. The rumor has some apparent foundation.

BOOMING THE EXPOSITION.

Colonel Avery Is Meeting with Great Success Everywhere.

Washington, May 28.—(Special.)—Colonel 1. W. Avery, who has been traveling in the interest of the Atlanta exposition, has reached this city. He has been in all the chief cities of the south, the commercial bodies of which have adopted resolutions favoring the exposition and calling on their senators and representatives to vote for a proper government exhibit.

Colonel Avery was as far west as Kansas City, and everywhere met with what he calls an "exposition ovation." Everybody was enthusiastically in favor of the expo sition and without an exception expressed the utmost confidence in the ability and willingness of Atlanta to make it all that such an exposition ought to be.

Today Colonel Avery had an audience with the board of trade of this city and met with the same enthusiastic reception which has greeted him elsewhere. Tomorrow the board will consider and pass suitable resolutions favoring the exposition.

Colonel Avery has also been in Baltimore, where favorable resolutions were adopted by the corn and flour exchange, the principal commercial body of the Monumental

From here he will again set out upon his journeyings in the interest of the exposition, visiting Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and the other cities of the middle west, after which he will visit Texas. He is assured that his mission will be as successful in the north-west and the state of the Lone Star as it has been everywhere that he has so far

Virginia cannot afford to permit so golden an opportunity to pass by that will enable her to intelligently present to the world her great possibilities, and her great seaport should exert every energy to demonstrate its advantages for becoming the commercial metropolis of

Yesterday afternoon a young girl was sent shopping in an Alabama town for her step-mother, and last night she was detained at police headquarters in Atlanta, having paid her way to this city with the money entrusted to her.

She is eighteen years old and was striking-ly attired in red, with white cuffs and a showy white hat and veil. As she left the Georgia Pacific train in the union depot last night she attracted the attention of Patrol-man Jordan, who was quick to tell from her manner that she was a stranger in the her manner that she was a stranger in the city.

The woman approached a hackman and told him that she was a stranger in the city and wanted a place to stay. Officer Jordan reported the case to Sergeant Ozburn and the latter took charge of the young girl and carried her to police headquarters.

The girl said that she did not get along well with her step-mother, and this was one cause that led to the step she took yesterday afternoon. That her departure was unpremeditated is shown by the fact that she carried no baggage of any kind.

Her father lives in an adjoining state, where he keeps a hotel. She is well-educated, and says she was a student at the Noble institute, which she has attended during two sessions.

It was almost a providential miracle that saved him from being ground to death. In some way he fell just outside the rail, his arm only catching under the wheels. It was ground to a pulp, and he was picked up, bloody and unconscious. Those around were sure that he was dead, but examination proved that life was still left in him. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Grady hospital. At the latter place the young man's arm was dressed where it was severed, and last night he was resting well. to the shoulder.

Brackett is the most notorious operator of moonlight jag factories in North Georgia and his appearance before the United States court upon the charge is as regular as the terms of court. Investigation, however, disclosed the fact that he owned a home and over a thousand acres of land in Murray county. He was persistent and refused to pay the fine. Since then he has been an occupant of the jail. This morning he will be tried again upon another indictment.

What One Hears Around the Hotels Among the Politicians-Congression-al Issues Will Soon Be Sprung.

The Evans campaign committee, which has charge of the general's campaign in this county, and of which Hon. Frank P. Rice is chairman, has not yet announced the names that it will present in General Evans's behalf at next Saturday's primary. Speaking of the matter, Chairman Rice said yesterday:

"The publication of any ticket which has yet been announced is entirely unauthorized by the committee. We have never consid-ered the matter, and will not do so until tomorrow, when the Evans campaign committee will meet, not only to take this, but several other matters, under consideration. We have authorized no ticket, and any publication which has been made, having the appearance of coming from the campaign committee, does those who have had charge of the details of his campaign in this county an injustice. We will meet to-morrow, go over the whole matter carefully and announce a ticket. It will be presented by the organized spokesmen of General Evans and will be put out in his name. I have nothing to say against any announcement which has been made in this connection further than that it is unauthorized. None but the names of good men have been suggested, but delicacy will, of course, suggest that General Evans's campaign committee should at least be consulted before an announcement is made which gives the public to understand that it has acted on a matter which it has never

A Lively Campaign, This. "You may say what you please about it," said Colonel Findley, the irrepressible politician from Gainesville, yesterday; "this is no tame gubernatorial campaign. The people of my section of the state have been wrought up considerably over it on both the Evans and the Atkinson sides of the fence. It has been a lively business up in the county of Hall. It is a common thing up there to see fathers and sons and whole fam ilies broken up in the political w rfare over the choice of a democratic nominee. That's one thing democrats will do, however; they will feel excited now and then when it comes to a tilt among themselves. Of course they are all little troubles that are soon smoothed down after the war is over, and everybody gets back into harness; but for the time the fever beats high, I want to tell you. The other day at the democratic primary the excitement was such as other. It all goes to show that it doesn't take a national campaign to arouse the democrats of the good old county of Hall." Muscogee Men Make Merry.

"It is pretty much the same way in Mus-cogee," remarked Hon. Louis Garrard, of Columbus. "Down there the folks go along quietly enough until the eleventh hour, but all of a sudden they burst forth with alarming interest and excitement in almost all of the campaigns. The voters of Muscogee do not attach much importance to speech making or campaign work. They take things easy, for the most part, until the election is at hand. Then you will find the democrats of that county awake and alive to the interests of the

"All of a sudden it became evident that there was a great deal of interest in the gubernatorial race between General Evans and Colonel Atkinson. The scenes around the city of Columbus just before the election were full of excitement, and there was no end to the manifestation of concern as to the choice for a democratic candidate. Muscogee democrats never sleep when it comes to an election, and, no matter how they vote, one thing is certain: they do vote, and in large numbers at that.

"After elections are over in Muscogee it is always interesting to see the good feeling that prevails after all the excitement. They meet each other and shake hands over the chasm like right good fellows, though but a day before they were at fierce war with each other, so to speak. It is a good sign to see democrats make merry over the ternation of a family quarre

What Will Republicans Do? Colonel S. A. Darnell, ex-district attorney of the United States court, who who has several times been a candidate for con-gress in the ninth, on the republican ticket. was talking about the coming congressiona race in that district the other day.

"It is hard to say what the republicans of the ninth will do this year," he re-marked, in answer to a question. "Some years they put out a candidate of their own, some years they support an inde-pendent candidate, whenever they have any hope of success, and it may that if no candidate is named by them this year they will for the most part vote with the pop-ulists. I know but little about it, one way or the other, but I am told that the 'populists will probably nominate Colonel Newt Twitty, of Jackson county, this next time for congress. If they do, and no republican candidate is nominated, I believe that the republicans of my district will support him, for the reason that they can hope to get more advantage in such an arrangement than if they went with the democrats. It is too early to say, however."

It is now certain, or pretty nearly certain, that the fight in the tenth this year will be the same old war of two years ago-

be the same old war of two years agoBlack vs. Watson.

It was rumored at first that Major Black would decline the nomination of his democratic friends. This rumor, however, was at random, and was poorly founded, it seems. The democrats of the tenth, who nave held any sort of political meetings thus far, have unanimously endorsed the conduct of Mr. Black in congress and given him praise and pledges of their unwavering support. He is certainly the choice of the democrats of all counties that have taken action, and, indeed, no other name has been mentioned in connection with the democratic nomination in the tenth but nis own, and will not, most probably.

When Mr. Watson was in Atlanta, attending the third party convention the other day a decided effort was made to get him to run for governor. His political friends of the party he leads were a unit for him as the man to run against the democratic nominee, but he waved the back of his hana to them, and thrice refused, with expressions of gratitude. He said to a Constitution reporter that if he runs for any office it will be for congress again in the tenth. He is really already a candidate there, only awaiting the nomination of his party, which he will, of course, receive with joyous and jubilant manifestations of endorsement.

Thus, while nothing is being said about it,
are race in the tenth is gradually shaping itself to the same forces that were at work there in the memorable c magign of two years ago.

The Marietta and North Georgia Railroad Will Be Forced to Sale. The Marietta and North Georgia railroad case will come up again before Judge Newman in a few days, and it is expected that the price will be radically reduced. After a long series of postponements for various causes the property was put on the block May 7th, but there was no one on hand to May 7th, but there was no one on hand to make a bid and since then the receiver has had charge of things as before.

There was a faint suspicion that the reorganization committee would buy the road in but it was necessary to put up $150,000 on the day of purchase and this, it was said, the committee could not do. In view of these facts and because a large sum for state and county taxes has long been due, the motion for a reduction of the upset price will no doubt be granted by Judge Newman, and the property forced to a speedy sale.

A BEAR RAID IN THE AFTERNOON

Caused a Lower Range of Prices-Wheat Influenced by Cold Weather Reports and Closed Higher.

NEW YORK, May 28.-There was a heavy falling off in business at the stock exchange today, the sales of stocks amounting to 144,000 shares, and of railway and miscellaneous bonds, $690,000. No further explanation of the professional character of the dealiings is needed. At the opening Sugar was in demand, rising 1/2 to 1011/4, while Rock Island receded % to 681/4. The changes otherwise were confined within a narrow limit. Lake Shore, Lead, Chicago Gas, Louisville and Nashville and New York Central displayed considerable strength at this time, and, in fact, the three first named held strong throughout and were the only active stocks in the list that showed a net gain for the day. Sugar, after its early rise, dropped to 98%, rallied to 100% and closed at 99%. There was more disposition to sell stock than for some time on rumors of unfavorable developments at Washington. In the afternoon the market at times was at a standstill, but just previous to the close the bears made another feeble effort against the list, and in the absence of sup-port they succeeded in bringing about a ower range of prices. The market closed %@¼ per cent lower for the day. Manhattan lost 2, Chicago Gas, Lead and Lake Shore scored gains of ½6% per cent. United States Leather, preferred, fell % and Consolidated Gas rose 2 to 137.

"There is nothing new in the speculative situation. On the bull side are easy money and manipulation factors, which, while not so effective as they were a few weeks ago, are still directed successfully at odd intervals, according to the short interest, against the bears. Hence we have a seesaw market, sold down or bid up as circumstances and the manipulators dictate.

Iron Market Shows More Strength. Foreign and Domestic News Company: The fron and steel trade has perceptibly hardened in tone, although transactions are not heavy. But the conviction that iron ore has toucned bottom and coke and coal will sell no lower, causes the universal belief that minimum cost of production has been reached.

There has been more pressure from consumers, therefore, to place orders, which has been met by reluctance on the part of producers to book them. The foundries are running almost as usual, as their supples of coke and anthracite coal have been kept Many mills have been forced to shut down completely for want of soft coal, and others are working on short time, so that the out-put of finished material is light. The strength of Bessemer pig iron and steel billets has, of course, extended to finished material.

There is little business doing in steel bilets, which are nominally quoted at $19.50 delivered. Stell rails are also quiet.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Although appearances this morning were rather favorable for some improvement, after opening about 2 points lower, at the same time several of those who have been strongly identified with the bear side thought differently, and by their sales and that of their following produced some further liquidation of the long interest, which carried prices down 3 points more. A recovery from this followed and the final figures are the same as Saturday. Liverpool did very well at the same prices as the last closing, but lost 2-64d atterwards. The small overland movement to the eastern mills last week apparently showed a very poor demand in that quarter for actual dottom, although we think, including the supplies in this country from which any demand would be drawn, are growing smaller by degrees and beautifully less, as the port movement on Saturday, which was 1,200 bales against 3,000 last year, shows how little cotton there is at the invisible towns and plantations in the south.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter NEW YORK, May 28.—Summary Hubbard, Price & Co.'s cotton letter: A decline of 1-64d in the Liverpool market this morning and a subsequent additional loss of another 1-64d has been reflected by a loss of from 4 to 5 points in the New York market, part of which was regained by 1 o'clock. Speculation in the cotton market seems dead, and the operations today are without significance. The tenor of the southern alvices is that no serious damage has been and the operations today are without significance. The tenor of the southern advices is that no serious damage has been done by the recent cold weather, and with a higher temperature and sunshine the crop seems to be again in a very promising condition. During the afternoon the market improved some 2 or 3 points and closed quiet and steady at within 2 points of Saturday's quotations. The cause of the improvement was the news that Mr. Hatch intended to leave Washington to be absent for three weeks and that the markets during that time were likely to be relieved from the malevolent influences that attended anti-option legislation. In addition to this rumors that a cold wave was progressing toward the cotton belt had their effect. If speculation were blueder, the news mentioned above would have had a more pronounced influence, but in the present situation the market rests almost entirely upon the demand for spot cotton, which shows some increase today, especially in the southern markets.

which was to be the panacea. Now it is the passage of the tariff bill.

"As to the bear side, facts are the same as before. Wheat ended within a fraction of its bottom price and as if it might again get into the monotonous business of record breaking. The low level at which the products of the soil are selling, together with poor earnings, is a legitimate argument against the inflation of railway values, while shortsighed railway economies, the ease in money and skillful manipulation are but temporary expedients for the deception of the week, advancing the last half. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Crop damage reports from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri, frosts in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, and the weather bureau indications of additional ones for Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, lower Michigan and western Pennsylvania carried the day in wheat, not that the advantage gained was particularly important, for the indisposition to trade was very marked, and prices were, until very near the close, comined to restricted limits by the action of people who held privileges, espicially those who owned calls. July wheat opened where it closed Saturday and ranged between 55% and 55.44.05%c, closing at the extreme outside point of the day with a strong undertone.

Corn—The frosts, material and prospective, helped corn quite as much as wheat. Everything, in fact, excepting the cables and tomorrow's estimated recepts, was calculated to enhance values. The range of July was between 58¼ and 37½c, and the close—38½038½c—showed a gain of ½0½c over Saturday. Cash corn was in good demand. Prices were ½c nigher.

Oats were influenced by the same conditions that governed wheat and corn. Crop damage was the main feature of the news. Nebraska complains louder than other states. The market closed with July ¾0½c higher than Saturday. Cash cats were in good demand and ¼c higher.

Provisions obtained the ability to recover from a weak opening from the strength which appears in the market for wheat, corn and oats. There was no particular importance attaching to the business, and prices did not go beyond a very restricted range. The close was 10c 12/sher for July lard gained but 2½c over Saturday.

THE CEREAL SITUATION.

A Week of Weather Markets in Wheat.

A Week of Weather Markets in Wheat.

From The New York Daily Stockholder.

The early part of last week was a period of hopeful encouragement for the bulls in wheat. The market reflected quite a strong undertone, and bears became uneasy. They covered shorts and proces railied quite sharply. The market was a weather market, nowever. First it was strong on alleged damage from frost. These reports came both from the west and from Europe, and bulls built great hopes on them. The close of the week saw the latter dashed to the ground by warm weather and the absence of confirmatory advices as to crop injury. The Cincinnati Price Current, first to pronounce the cold wave of March without serious effects, was equally quick on this occasion to deny that frost had done much hurt. The result was that the market turned weak. Chicago bears aggressive, causing some speculative liquidation. Sentiment in Chicago was, in fact, more bearish than ever and Captain Phillips, for months monotonously correct on the short side, at the end made the prediction that May wheat would sell at 50 cents. With the new crop only a few weeks away, the 63,000.000 bushels in the visible supply and the large shipments from other countries are a dead weight on the market. Last week there were shipped to Europe of wheat and flour some 7,500,000 bushels. Argentine continues to export at the rate of about 2,000,000 a week. Russia is shipping freely and the result is that the foreigners have no concern as to future supplies. Hence, the dullness in the export trade, the latter, considering the great depression in prices, being the most unfavorable feature to the speculative situation. During the past week cables were hardly less discourgaing than have been for weeks. There was nothing in them to indicate that Europe will be a large buyer here during the summer, and, unless the export demand revives, the buils will have difficulty in forcing any material advance. Railles on the short interest seem, therefore, more probable than a bull movement under legitim months in the price of their food product. Corn has been strong, then weak. Receipts are being watched very closely and will continue to be, this week and next. In this connection a leading house says: "Buyers claim that receipts will fail off in the immediate future, as supplies in the country are small, and the present free movement is due to the announcement that freight rates will be advanced the first of next week. The crop in some sections undoubtedly received a setback from the recent frosts, but there is apparently little cause to fear that the final results will be greatly affected. The sharp increase in receipts is doubtless due in a measure to the cause mentioned, but there is usually some increase in the movement at this time of the year, and there has been no indication in the movement so far this year that country stocks were being greatly reduced."

Some experts in Chicago say that the movement is going to taper off from now on, and that there is very little corn at the railway stations. The next ten days will tell the story. It is hard to believe, however, that the enormous shipments early in the year have not seriously depleted farmers' supplies. The oat market has had very little feature. It looks like a purchase on the soft spots. Provisions reacted on speculative liquidation. When weak they should be bought.

DELAYERED BY BISHOP NELSON. The Diplomas to the Graduating Class of the Capital Female College. In reviewing the exercises of the past week, which supplied the people of Atlanta with a charming series of literary enter-tainments, those of the Capital Female college, which occurred at the Grand last Friday evening, have left a most indelible

The conception of the entertainment, as well as the flawless execution of the pro-gramme, was classical and cultured. It was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience that packed the opera house, and the oc-casion will long be remembered by all who were so fortunate as to attend. The music, both vocal and instrumental, under the management of that noted teach er, Miss Hardeman, of Kentucky, was thoroughly artistic and beautiful. The elocutionary part of the programme, under the direction of Professor W. W. Lumpkin, whose reputation is measured by the graphical area of the southern states, superbly rendered, and was a marked tribute to that able instructor of elocution, as well as to the young ladies who par ticipated.

pantomimic play and Greek oses were artistic. The young ladies were charmingly attired, and their winning smiles were softly blended with their graceful attitudes, making the scene one of surpassing loveliness. If they had fallen from the rainbow or stepped from the stately masterpieces of the old school, they could not have presented a more bewitching picture. This feature of the programme evoked the most hearty and prolonged enthusiasm.

The delivery of the diplomas by the Right Rev. Bishop Nelson, of the diocese of Georgia, was a fitting climax to this brilliant entertainment. His words were eloquent and earnest, and his advice was both time-ly and appropriate. Miss Beck, the efficient principal of the school, is entitled to the heartiest congratulations of the friends and patrons of the institution. Her school is not only an ornament to the city, but is one leading seminaries of the whole country.

VISITING PYTHIANS

Are Royally Entertained by Their Atlanta Brothers.

DELIGHTFUL BARBECUE

The Knights Came Up from Newhan and Were Royally Feasted, Having a Great Time of It.

Knights of Pythias took the town yes-terday afternoon and then, not satisfied with that feat, took Little Switzerland and one of the most tempting and palatable barbecues that has been seen in this sec-tion in a long time.

The Pythias came up from Newnan yesterday afternoon and were the guests of Atlanta lodge No. 20. It was a jolly crowd that came and was composed of the lead-ing business and professional men of that charming little city on the Atlanta and West Point road.

The party of Pythians came to Atlanta to see Atlanta lodge No. 20 give the amplified third to several applicants.

The Atlanta Pythians decided to make the coming of the Newman Pythians an event in the history of Georgia Pythianism, and the chapter which was written from the time the Newnan delegation came antil it left was one full of happy sen-

The Newnan Pythians reached the city at 4:30 o'clock on the Atlanta and West Point train and were met at the union depot by a committee of reception from lodge. That committee mposed of W. A. Long, J. T. Wyly, G. Conners, W. E. Algee and R. T. Pase.
Was 2 fraternal handshake full of brotherly love and then the visitors were led to the corner of Alabama and Pryor streets, where a special car, chartered by Atlanta lodge was resting. There, too, was a large delegation of Atlanta Pythians and in a few minutes the car, loaded down with men wearing the same signs as watch charms, was rushing toward Grant watch charms, was rushing toward create park. At the park the crowd left the car and walked to Little Switzerland. The walk was just enough to make every one thirsty and anticipating that thirst the Atlanta Pythians had a cool, delicous group of "schooners" scattered about in the shade.

It was not long, either, until the foam had been blown from each of the schooners. And then, for fear that some visiting Pythian had not had a schooner, Mr. H. Douglas, grand chancellor of the Pythians of the state, called the roll. Here are those who answered to the call:

No party was ever more royally "Schlitzed" than the Newnanites. While the foam was being blown, there was pleasant conversation for an hour, and then a dinner horn sounded down by the barbecue hall. It was Gus Long who made the blow, and it was a good "long" blow. In a few minutes the party of seventy-five or more was seated around a table, decorated with fresh flowers and laden with barbecued meats of a half-dozen kinds. These were cooked to the most delicious taste, and were garnished with everything that goes to make a barbecue a genuine barbecue.

After a hearty eating, made more hearty by the foaming beakers abundantly supplied, Hon. James Austin took the floor and presented Grand Chancelbr Douglas, who talked entertainingly.

Other interesting speeches were made, and among the speakers were Hon. W. H. Venable and Hon. E. W. Martin, both candidates for state semator from this district. Both gentlemen talked most interestingly. But if any one expected either to turn on politics, he was disappointed.

Both gentlemen belong to the same Pythian bodge, and, while they are striving for the same position, they talked only of Pythianism.

Pythianism.

About dark the crowd returned to the city, but what happened in Pythian hall last night no one can tell.

After the work in the hall, the visitors were entertained at the South Carolina

STARVING 'MID PLENTY.

Why Will So Many People Persist in Doing So?

WHEN IT IS NEEDLESS.

pletely Digested Before Being Eaten, Thus Enabling the Weakest Stomach

If you are starving, it is all the same whether you starve because you cannot get food to eat or because you cannot digest what you eat. The effects are the same. The results are the same.

There is a certain difference; in this way: The poor man if he gets enough food will soon get fat. The invalid, whatever food he may eat, cannot get fat, unless he feeds on artificially digested food.

Since Paskola, the pre-digested food, has been prepared, people have rapidly been growing fatter. Before Paskola, there was nothing that could be done to cure dyspep-sia. It was the bane of the doctors. Drugs could do nothing. Cod liver oil made it worse. Dyspeptics, anaemics, consumptives and all people who were thin and pale, who in fact were starving amidst plenty, were thought incurable.

Today it is different. We have Paskola. We know that Paskola, being pre-digested, will cure starving invalids. It will make thin people fat. It will make pale people rosy. It will make weak people strong.

Paskola does this because it is a food. Because it is a food that will feed you whether you can digest other food or not. The starches are the fattening foods. We know this because doctors forbid starchy food to people who are growing too fat. The chief merit in Paskola is that it is a pre-digested food. Another, that it is a starchy food. Another, that it helps you to digest what other food you may eat. The chief good that Paskola can do is to nake all thin people grow fat. Another, to relieve the pangs of indigestion. Another, o put fresh life in your veins and make you feel younger and stronger.

If Paskola were a medicine it would do you no permanent good at all. It is not a medicine; it is a food. We need food every day of our lives. We do not need prefiging. Just see what Paskola has done for My liver is very bad at times and I get bilious. There is nothing that helps indigestion like Paskola. I have tried about twelve doctors and have been suffering more than four years.

I will say that I have been so weak that I could work only about two days in a week. For nearly three years I spent all I had for doctoring and had given up hope, I am sure Paskola will restore me. Trusting to hear from your very garly, yours

Bridgeton, N. J., April 11, 1894.—The Pre-Digested Food Company, 30 Reade Street, New York. Gentlemen: Through the advice of friends I decided to try your Paskola for my daughter, who has been in very poor health for several months past from loss of appetite and general debility.
She had wasted away in flesh, and at the time she began taking Paskola weighed 112 pounds, and after two weeks' treatment gained eight pounds. She is gaining in health and strength daily, with increasing appetite for the most hearty food that was repugnant to her before taking Paskola.
As a flesh-forming feed, I think it far superior to cod liver oil or other similar preparations, and am more than gratified with the results.

STEWART,

A ROYAL TUMBLE.

Mrs. Daniel Knocks Her Neighbor Down a Stairway.

A BARREL OF SLOPS AND A BROOM

Followed Close Behind-Exciting Culmination of a Quarral Between Two Families-Police Take a Hand.

The novel spectacle of a scared female, with floating, flying skirts and tangled hair, tumbling noisily and violenlty down a stair-way like a thousand bricks, followed by a broom, a barrel of slops and an angry wo-man, refreshed the gaze of the half hundred passers by in the neighborhood of Forsyth's rrocery store on Marietta street yesterday

Bounding, bumping and thumping like a pursted baseball of heroic size, the unforbursted baseoni or nerole size, the unfor-tunate came rattling down the stairway with the frightful impetus given her by the power behind the throne. She hit the sidewalk with a resounding thump and gathered herself up so bedraggled by the slimy slops that had followed her in her receipting does that he her triend would precipitate dash that her best friend would precipitate dash that her best friend would not 'ave known her. To the inexperienced eye he looked very much as if she had just been dropped out of the funnel of a furious cyclone, after being carried through

The woman was Mrs. Louise Edwards, a dark-eyed, dark-haired brunette about thir-ty-two years old, who lives with her fami-ly upstairs not far from Forsyth's store. Her nearest neighbor, Mrs. Jane Daniel, was responsible for the terrible fall down-

Her nearest neighbor, Mrs. Jane Daniel, was responsible for the terrible fall downstairs.

Mrs. Daniel lives in the same house with Mrs. Edwards, with a family of three children. The two women have, in time, been the most intimate of neighbors, but all this has changed, and quite recently they have been entertaining hearty feelings of dislike for each other on account of some petty domestic disagreements. Since then their neighborly intercourse has been enlivened by almost daily little tiffs, wordy combats that ended in nothing more serious than a lot of noise that was not relished by the neighbors who took no interest in the affair. Yesterday came the final quarrel, the climax being reached in one of the usual quarrels. Each futs the blame upon the other, but as to the general happenings there is no dispute. Both sides agree that while the two combatants were standing at the head of the stairway talking, Mrs. Daniel grabbed up a broom and struck Mrs. Edwards. The latter recled and staggered backward from the blow, and losing her balance, fell into the stairway.

The force of the fall carried her down at a rapid rate. Quick as lightning the now enraged Mrs. Daniel caught up a barrel of slops that stood near, and with almost masculine strength hurled it after the bounding form of her opponent. The barrel went crashing down the stairway, overtaking Mrs. Edwards, and showering its contents upon her, and bilinding and so completely covering her that she was unrecognizable.

The startling arrival upon the sidewalk

The startling arrival upon the sidewalk of Mrs. Edwards created a sensation among those who witnessed it, and two young men employed in the store went rushing up the stairway to investigate the cause of the appearance of such an apparition. They were met by Mrs. Daniels, who gave them a similar dose, and they got back to the sidewalk in much less time than it took them to get up. When they appeared at police headquarters a little later they wore different suits of clothes from those worn during the morning.

Patrolman Harris arrested all the portion during the morning.

Patrolman Harris arrested all the parties and summoned several of the onlookers as witnesses. Besides being immersed in kitchen slop in a most unpleasant and disagreeable fashion, Mrs. Edwards was bruised in several places by her wild tumble.

In the police annals of Marietta street this particular adventure deserves a unique place.

INAUTHORIZED AND ERRONEOUS

Is the Statement That the Liquor Dealers Will Have a Picnic. "I wish you would say for the liquor dealers," said Mr. Frank Potts yesterday, "that the impression which has gotten abroad that the liquor dealers will attend a picnic next Friday is entirely erroneous. It is true that gome young men in getting up a picnic have endeavored to create the mpression that it was a liquor dealers' affair and that the liquor dealers would at-tend in a body and make it an event like the grocers' picnic and others, but that is a mistake. Friday our places of business will be closed on account of the election, but we will take just as much interest in the election and will not be absent from the city that day. The effort to make that picnic appear as one in which all dealers will take part is unauthorized and errone-

A LESSON IN HYGIENE.

Now that water supplies 2 re recognized as the chief vehicle for propagating typhoid fever, medical and scientilic authorities throughout the world are constantly dwelling on the necessity of using water of known purity. While this has no bearing on medicinal waters which, however valuable, cannot safely be made part of the ordinary daily diet because of the active chemical substances they contain, it has, however, given a wonderful stimulus to the consumption of dietetic or table waters, such as Apillinaris. It is little wonder, however, that the use of Apollinaris is on the increase, for who does not gladly take this beverage, which, besides being pure and healthful, is delightful and refreshing?

THOSE WHO WENT

To the Exposition at Chicago

Saw the wonderful exhibition made by the Libbey Glass Company. This was considered one of the most interesting displays there. The wonderful process of cutting glass was shown in all its details.

The Libbey Company are acknowled to be the most skillful cutters of glass in the world. The purity and brilliancy of their glass and the artistic effects of their cutting has easily put their work far ahead of all other makes. To say that cut glass "is as good as Libbey's" means the highest claim that competitors aspire to, hence it is that the Libbey make is a household word in this country.

J. P. Stevens & Bro. are sole agents in Atlanta for this glass. They show the largest stock to be seen in this city and their prices are acknowledged the lowest.

A DAY'S POLICE NEWS

A Covington Merchant Recovers Valuable Goods Through The Constitution.

A FRIENDLESS YOUNG WOMAN CARED FOR

She Was on Her Way to Her Home in West Point-Other Short Police Items.

A short item of police news in The Constitution led Mr. L. A. Adams, a leading merchant of Covington, to recover a valuable lot of stolen goods and the solution of a burglary mystery.

A week ago Patrolman Coker arrested Charles Smith, a negro whom he found with two new watches, six gold chains, several articles of jewelry and quite a lot of costly silverware. Coker knew the negro had stolen the articles, the value of which aggregated quite a sum, and he carried him to police headquarters for investigation. Smith was locked up on suspicion, but no evidence tending to show that he was a burglar was discovered. He was sent to the city stockade thirty days, awaiting

Mr. L. A. Adams, of Covington, read in The Constitution of the arrest of Smith, and description of the goods held at police

further developments concerning the goods

Just a few nights before his store at Cov ington had been robbed and articles identical with those recovered from the negro Smith were stolen. He wrote to Chief Connolly accurately describing his lost property, giving marks by which it could be identified beyond question. Comparing the watches, chains, silverware and articles of jewelry with Mr. Adams's description, Chief Connoily was convinced that the Covington merchant was the owner of the property, and so wrote to him.

Yesetrday Mr. Adams came up from Covington and got the property. In the mean-time Smith, against whom there is now a strong case of burglary, has escaped from the city stockade and is at large Penniless and Friendless.

The train from Macon yesterday afternoon brought to Atlanta a well-dressed young woman, who a few minutes after her arrival, called on Chief Connolly at police headquarters.

The young woman told a straightforward sotry about herself and asked Chief Connolly to give her temporary aid. She said that she had been living in Macon, where she had a place in a restaurant. She had lost her position and was on her way to her home in West Point, where she had relatives

Paying her fare from Macon to Atlanta had exhausted her finances and what she wanted Chief Connolly to do was to give her temporary shelter until she could hear from her brother at West Point. She said that she would get a letter from him in a few days, containing transportation to West Point. Chief Connolly sent the young woman to the Home for the Friendless until her relatives can be heard from.

Tears and Pleas.

William Warren, the blind tiger proprietor, wept penitential tears, confessed and begged for mercy in police court yesterday at trenoon.

Warren seems to have kept a tiger of goodly dimensions. A basketful of well-filled bottles rested on the judge's stand when the case was called, and Warren owned up to them, but told a neat tale to justify himself. "I never sold whisky before in my life," he said tearfully, "but my rent was due to-day and I didn't have the money to pay it. I never have failed to pay Mr. George Adair when the time came around, and the only way I could see to get out of it was to sell whisky. I never intended to do it again. It was just to pay my rent." Warren wept most effectively and Judge Calhoun cut his fine down to $10 and costs. Nothing contributes more towards a sound digestion than the use of the genuine Angostura Bitters of Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons. Ask your druggist.
